About the

Leaders Development Conference

Steeped in the legacy of visionary leadership and forward-thinking, Eno's Leaders Development Conference (LDC) offers a unique incubator for graduate students poised to shape the future of transportation. This distinguished program is a testament to our dedication to the advanced education and professional development of those who will spearhead tomorrow's breakthroughs in transportation-related disciplines, including engineering, planning, public policy, and more.

For the Fellow, LDC offers a learning environment where academic theory meets real-world application.

"When I work on my research, I consider how my results could impact policy from local all the way to federal."

-LDC Fellow on its impact

"How to ask the right questions and take advantage of the knowledge from experts and practitioners you meet."

- Diana Ramirez-Rios, Eno Fellow 2018 on what she learned as an LDC Fellow

For graduate students—our LDC Fellows—this program provides a pivotal opportunity to immerse themselves in a dynamic setting that fosters innovation and strategic networking. Through hands-on learning and direct access to industry leaders, Fellows gain invaluable insights and develop relationships that propel their careers forward. Your sponsorship enables these promising leaders to harness their full potential, contributing significantly to the advancement and sustainability of the transportation sector.
